JAMES FLEMING HOSIE

Dedication

To James Fleming Hosie,
with the good will and good wishes of all the students of the Chicago Normal College

James Fleming Hosie

James Fleming Hosie came to the Chicago Normal College in 1902 to become head of the newly organized department of English. He was prepared for the duties of the position by experience as teacher and principal in public schools as well as by graduate study at the University of Chicago, where he had just received his Master's degree in English. In the long period since, corresponding almost exactly with the lives of the Class of '21, he has rendered conspicuous service not only in the Normal School but also in the schools of the city and in national teachers' organizations. He was the moving spirit in the foundation in 1911 of the National Council of Teachers in English, and thereafter, as secretary of the Council and editor of the English Journal, he became the foremost leader and most popular spokesman of the teachers of English. Throughout his Chicago career he has frequently been called upon to prepare or to aid in preparing courses of study for the city. Upon Mr. Hosie's return from a year's leave for study Superintendent Shoop instituted the "English Centers," a group of schools in which a beginning has been made in drawing together the practices of the city schools and the doctrines of the Normal. The success of this work has been due chiefly to the spirit of co-operation aroused by Mr. Hosie's genuinely democratic leadership. Within the Normal college Mr. Hosie has served upon a great number of faculty committees, and has always been one of the most popular instructors. His keen power of analysis, his constant sallies of wit and unforgettable phrases, his deep enthusiasm for the work of his profession, and his unusual sympathy with the efforts and difficulties of students have won the admiration and affection of thousands of his pupils. These same qualities coupled with his decisiveness and almost tireless energy promise success in his new work in Teachers' College of Columbia University, where he is to organize a new department, that of extra-mural courses.

Changes in the Faculty

In addition to Mr. Hosie's leaving us there have been several other changes in the faculty during the past year.

Mr. John W. Shepherd was appointed Vice-Principal early in the school year.

Mr. Ernest F. Detterer of the Art Department has accepted a position at the Art Institute and his place is being temporarily filled by Mr. Geilen of Parker High.

Miss Alice J. Manchce, a graduate of the Chicago Normal College and of the Teachers' College of Columbia University, is now a member of the Kindergarten Department, and Miss Euphemia Evoy is a new addition to the Household Arts Department. She has charge of the classes in Institutional Cookery.

Mr. Butler Laughlin has taken John R. Clark's place in the Mathematics Department.

What Every Chicago Public School Teacher Should Read

A teacher is judged by many things. She may be judged by the way she dresses, she may be judged by her actions both within and without the classroom, she may be judged by her associates and she may be judged by what she reads.

How may a teacher know what to read? She should read those books and magazines which will make her a better teacher and a more useful citizen. The Chicago Schools' Journal is one of these magazines.

The Chicago Schools' Journal is published monthly by the faculty of the Normal College and it is sent free to every teacher in the Chicago Public Schools. If you do not receive a copy after you are assigned permanently, see your principal and know the reason why.

The Journal has several departments. The editor and managing editor determine the type of articles to be published. The editor of the Question and Answer Department answers all questions sent in by teachers. Here is a chance to get advice through the Journal. The news editor gives short live paragraphs about recent events which may be of interest to teachers. The periodical editor reviews recent articles in magazines and the book editor reviews recent books. By reading these reviews a teacher may know whether they are what she needs. The art editor arranges the material in a way pleasing to the eye.

The Chicago Schools' Journal is yours and it is published solely for the benefit of you and the other teachers of Chicago. Read it, put into practice the suggestions that are applicable to your room and keep informed on the educational development of our country.

Opportunity

- 1   Footsore and weary on a dusty road,
       I heard the sound of a steed come nigh
       I reached for the bridle—too late—
       Like a flash it passed me by.

- 2   I lay me down in the dusty road
       Willing to wait 'til death came nigh
       Before I could rise, the rushing steed
       A second time passed me by.

- 3   I stood in hope in the dusty road
       With might and main again to try.
       I heard the hoofs of the winged steed,
       Now, 'twas a dream passed by.

L'Envoy

When the song of the singer has ended,
 And the poem of the poet is read,
 When the deed of the hero is history,
 And the last word of statesmen are said,
 We will think of the days spent at Normal,
 In memory again we'll retrace
 The pictures so near and so dear,
 That the sands of time cannot erase.
 We will turn back again in our musing,
 To the days filled with sunshine and smiles,
 We will gambol again on the campus,
 Forgetting the world and its wiles.
 We will harken once more to our teachers
 On their precepts again we will dwell.
 We will return at least in spirit
 To the place that we all love so well.

Class History

The Class of '21 is prepared at last to make its debut into the world of teaching. It seems incomprehensible to us as we look back to our first days at Normal that two very, very short years could have done so much for us. Back in our Lower Junior days we wore a modest and unassuming mien and were content to bide our time until we should make ourselves a power in Normal. We chose Ruth Glos for our first president.

We first made our presence definitely felt when, as Upper Juniors, we gave an assembly program on Washington's birthday. Madelyn Butler was our president then. A little later we inaugurated a novelty at Normal, a "Who's Who" Campaign. At our Immigrant party, which ended the great campaign, we held a "Who's Who" Contest and Anastasia Woods knew every girl in the class. In June we watched the Upper Seniors receive their diplomas, and with their words of advice and farewell we were glad that our days at Normal were not over.

September, 1920, ushered in the new system of Practice and we Lower Seniors with Constance Hunter as president, and as Upper Seniors with Laura Kinderman in the place of honor, helped to put it to the test. We enjoyed the new experience immensely and came through with colors flying, as the class of '21 has always done.

Our great day, June 24, is rapidly nearing. We are glad, of course, but sorry too, because while that day marks our final triumph, it also brings the close of a very happy period of our lives.

It seems almost impossible to reconcile the stately lady of "Merely Mary Ann" with the en-

both Ruth Lichter. The contrast shows ability in both lines.

RUTH MARIE LISTON

Class Will

We, the Graduating Class of June, 1921, of the Chicago Normal College, being of sound mind and memory, and considering the uncertainty of this frail and transitory life, and knowing that we shall soon be only a memory, do therefore make and ordain, publish and declare this to be our last will and testament.

First, we order and direct our Executors, hereinafter named, to pay all our unpaid class and club dues, finish all our unfinished notebooks, and write all the papers we forgot to hand in as soon after school begins in September as conveniently may be.

Second, after all that has been satisfactorily accomplished, we give, devise and bequeath:

- (1) To the faculty a long and restful vacation for their efforts in making life so interesting for us.
- (2) To the Lower Seniors the dignity of Upper Seniorhood and the many trials, tribulations, and joys attendant on Class Day and Commencement.
- (3) To the Upper Juniors the sacred obligation of securing five days off in honor of the work we managed to avoid.
- (4) To the Lower Juniors our ability to avoid the many pitfalls made by our wily faculty to inveigle us to do things for which we saw no need of doing—and hence—
- (5) A number of individual bequests follow, and we leave the distribution to the discretion of our Executors. We shall just enumerate.
 (1) Billy Reeves' excess avoirdupois; (2) Helen Gallagher's ear muffs; (3) Junietta Scharfenberg's loquacity; (4) Madeline Murray's ability to bluff; (5) Esther Harwood's and Dorothy Spill's fashionableness; (6) Florence Harrington's gizzard; (7) Ruth Raftree's grace in gym; (8) Mahlie Renn's complexion; (9) Nellie Baxter's brogue; (10) Marie Tierney's dramatic ability; (11) Ellen Hayes' wit; (12) Eona DeVere's shyness; (14) Madelyn Butler's adorable way of saying, "Oh, did the bell ring?" and—just the opposite—Ruth Glos' tardy slips.
- (6) To Mrs. Hawthorne, as a special favor, we bequeath a pencil, attached to her desk by a spring, for the use of those unfortunate mortals who continually bother her for a pencil.

Lastly, we nominate and appoint the Lower Juniors to be the Executors of this, our last Will and Testament, without bonds.

We hereby revoke our former will and codicils.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto subscribed our name this 24th day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one.

CLASS OF JUNE 1921.

To Our Advisors

Mrs. Pendleton, Mr. Whitten, Miss Hutchison, Mr. McMurry, Miss Freeman, Mr. Geyer, Mr. Hinkle—

The gratitude of everyone

Is yours, dear Mrs. Pendleton

Because you've always been so kind

Having our welfare in your mind.

Our thanks, not less, are also due

To all our other advisors, who

Were always ready with their aid:

Pleasant and smooth our way they made.

CLASS OF JUNE '21.

Class Song

Here's a song to Normal College
 Let it ring, oh, let it ring.
 May our hearts be bound forever
 Oh, let us sing and sing.

Chorus

Let us cheer, all will cheer
 For our class so dear,
 Honor follows us where e're we lead
 And we'll march right through,
 As we always do
 The jolly, jolly twenty-one's.

We're the class of Normal College
 Of the year of '21
 And we bring with us much knowledge,
 Also, lots and lots of fun.

To the Juniors tell the story
 How we came, and saw, and won.
 That they too may win such glory
 And shine like the brightest sun.

Normal College, we are leaving,
 Going out to make a mark;
 There is no use at all in grieving,
 Very oft' best friends must part.

Through the endless years to come
 We'll be loyal, brave and true;
 Tho' the cloud may sunshine sever
 The silver will keep right through.

History of the February Class of 1922

You who have undertaken an entirely new project in life and know the difficulties of immediately adapting yourself to the new situation can appreciate the obstacles the February Class of 1922 encountered upon entering Normal. We were confused by the new terms. Such phrases as "problem project," "fringe of attention," and "motivation" had no meaning for us. Little by little, however, we passed the Scylla and Charybdis of the first few weeks and really entered into the spirit of Normal.

Brought together for a common purpose the class soon began to work as a unit and it was deemed advisable to elect a president. For this position Irene Marshall was selected and her success was shown by the Memorial Day program presented by the Lower Juniors, over which Miss Marshall presided.

So busy were we that the semester soon passed and before we realized it we were back in September occupying the formerly much envied position of Upper Juniors. Under the guidance of Marie Long we tranquilly passed thru the semester, having but two brief periods of anxiety, one at the end of ten weeks and the other during examination week.

And then the height of our ambition! How we strutted about school with heads held high, for we had reached the pedestal of Seniorhood. Only one in that station can understand the exaltation. It was Marion Hunter who now received the honor of honors—our leader.

Half of our class is now confronting the joys and sorrows of "practice teaching." In September they will return to carry on their studies and we will take their places in the classroom.

We are looking forward to our last ten weeks when we shall again be united. We hope, under the able guidance of Elizabeth Foster, who has been chosen our Upper Senior President, to continue our good work and to perform deeds of merit which will cause the February Class of 1922 to be recognized as one of the greatest in the history of the C. N. C.

members of the faculty.

Her thought is so wide, and deep, and free,
We look for a book of philosophy.

MABEL BOSWINKLE

LORRAINE GENESE BURKE III A
4028 W. Polk St.
N. C. A. A., S. D. C.

have guessed it from her appearance, she was so petite. She made the All Star Team in Captain
Ball and showed up well in any sport. Dancing, both ballroom and fancy, was her specialty. She was a member of the N. C. A. A. Joan had both

MARGUERITE CULLEN

III C

2729 Evergreen Ave.

ELIZABETH MARGARET DALY

III B

2947 Adams St.

HELEN L. DILLON

III B

6610 Ingleside Ave.

Pep is Helen's middle name and why not, when she is in one of the peppiest sections? Besides this she has a winning smile and a happy disposition.

EDNA DUNKER

III A

26 W. 109th Pl.
N. C. A. A., Glee Club.

But when you know her, then you see
Another like her can't be found.

ERNA FRITZE

III C

N. C. A. A., Students' Council, Sec.-Treas. III C.
In math. she's a shark and a wizard too,
She'll tackle all problems no matter how stiff,
Perhaps her inspiration to her instructor is due,
And that leads us to puzzle and wonder if—step.

ROSA JAMES

III C

7236 Wentworth Ave.

Junior and Senior Glee Clubs, N. C. A. A.

Singing, dancing and having a good time generally were the things Martha used to care most about long, long ago. That was before education was on her program. After that she spent all her spare time consulting ponderous authorities on education and reading educational pamphlets and reviews. Social hour saw her no more. Education possessed Martha.

ANNA DOROTHY O'CONNELL III Kg.

405 Eugenie St.

N. C. A. A., Kg. Club, Glee Club.

Anne was one of those lucky ones who didn't need to tremble when called upon to sing alone in music. The Kg. Club made her its Vice-President. Anne had much self-possession; nothing ever seemed to worry her.

She's always a cheerful and happy lass

And a favorite with all in our class.

HELEN O'LEARY

III H. A.

3530 W. 13th Pl.

N. C. A. A., Students' Council.

Helen is a pretty, peppy girl and is Al Jolson's only rival. She says she is a man-hater but we have our doubts. Anyway she is popular with all the ladies.

N. C. A. A., S. D. C., Junior and Senior Glee Clubs, Emblem Art Committee, Chairman Class Social

Maud has the reputation of being a perfect "shark," not the man-eating kind—oh! no—but the kind that reminds one of a combined trigonometry and encyclopedia. She was popular with her teachers and a collector of good grades.

JOSEPHINE ROBERTSON

III C

6715 Michigan Ave.

Josephine is a live wire and will surely make a good teacher—but perhaps not for long.

WINNIFRED ALICE SCOTT

III A

4442 W. Adams St.

N. C. A. A., S. D. C., Students' Council, Glee Club.

In spite of her fondness for athletics poor Winnifred used to have a hard time in her Junior year trying to dodge the Posture Class (she didn't always succeed, either). All she had to do in order to make a friend was to smile. No one could resist that smile. Winnie was section Sec. in '21.

ELVIRA SEIPS

HELEN SMITH

III B

6533 Newgard Ave.

N. C. A. A., Glee Club.

Oh, Helen, laugh, and the world laughs with you—and succumb to portliness. Helen is not exactly a fairy in gym, but she finds her way around the gym horses when she can't go over them. And as for math, ask her any problem and she'll answer (?) it.

HELEN SULLIVAN

III A

3852 Lexington St.

N. C. A. A.

Here is one who was always loyal and true. Whenever we were feeling blue, Helen could always think up a joke to bring back the smiles.

MARIE ROSE SULLIVAN

III A

2226 S. Hamilton Ave.

Our Prettiest Girl

It is not given to everyone to win a prize in a beauty contest. Marion Hunter, Section III B, is the only girl at Normal who did it and so she is quite a distinguished person.

Marion, herself, says she wonders how they ever happened to award her a prize, but we do not wonder at it so greatly. Besides having the honor and glory of being a beauty, Marion has the sum of $250, her prize, with which she says she will build a home for teachers. It is indeed a noble way for her to dispose of her money and she could erect quite a magnificent edifice with that amount. The fact that she wishes to spend her money in this way proves that she is as kind and generous as she is beautiful. Her disposition has not been in the least affected by her success. She is a very lovely girl both in appearance and in character and one whom it is a real pleasure to know.

The Printing Room

The Printing Room, a branch of the Industrial Arts Department, has greatly expanded during the past semester. This is quite an addition for the Manual Training group and, due to the thorough instruction the boys get, they are eligible for assignment in Printing as well as in Manual Training. The regular two-year course of study is followed. This semester is the first time that printing has been offered as an elective. Altogether, there is an enrollment of forty. As yet, the field of printing has not held many inducements for girls, but if the Print Shop holds its attraction, Normal will produce some capable woman printers.

I think it would be well for us, who are not acquainted with the Print Shop, to know something of its equipment. There are two Chandler & Price Gordon Presses, one Poco Proof Press, one Boston Stitcher and a Multi-graph equipment, all with power. There is a 32-inch paper cutter, an imposing stone, four feet by six feet with compartments which contain wood furniture, reglets, letter boards, galley racks, and drawers for storage, two job case cabinets, one of which will accommodate fifty cases and the other, a two-thirds size, which will accommodate twelve cases, and last, but really most important, is the complete series of type with seven different styles. The whole is so well arranged that from twenty to twenty-four students can be accommodated at one time.

We are all proud of the new room and its equipment. And we are all so grateful to Mr. Thoren for the printing of the million and one things we are continually wanting — election ballots, musicale programs, S. D. C. tickets—everything, but of course, with such a nice new shop to—I almost said to work in but I mean to teach in—why, shouldn't Mr. Thoren like it?

History of the Upper Junior Class

(Forgive me, Oh Lincoln.)

Fourteen score and twenty days ago (more or less) our fathers sent us forth to write Normal Entrance Examinations, conceived in the minds of the learned, and concocted that only the fittest might survive. Then we engaged in the great inky war deciding whether, under examinations so conceived and so concocted we could endure. We victors met in the Assembly Hall to dedicate five hours a day to the service of those by whom the plots were laid. To show our great heartedness and forgiveness it is only right and proper that we should do this. But, in a larger sense, we have nothing to forgive in the teachers, whose astonishment at our passing the exams was so short lived. With open arms (figuratively speaking) they met us in the Ball room of the Normal College a few short days after our arrival. We toddled the hour away with the Seniors, bowing and deferential. From the first they looked up to us—for most of us were stationed on the third floor. The brave men living and daring, who struggled to impart to us their knowledge of the rudiments of numbers, found it far above our poor power to add or subtract—but what mattered so tiny a flaw in a class otherwise so unapproachable? The faculty and classes will greatly note, and long remember what we say here, but even more they will remember what we did here. It is rather for them, the onlookers, to laud the Washington sketch which we so nobly presented, than for us to strew our own flowers. It is rather for them, the teachers, to help us shoulder the great task before us, than for us to falter beneath the weight of Geography, Psychology, and Arts of the Household. That from these honored subjects we may gain priceless knowledge, and we here highly resolve that their heroic efforts shall not be in vain. The hundred and twenty members of the Class of '22, under the dome of Normal College, shall unceasingly raise their voices in praise of the faculty; and that knowledge of the College, about the College and concerning the College shall not perish from the earth.

History of the Lower Junior Class

Well, here we are, almost but still not quite, Upper Juniors.

It was only a few months ago that we came as humble Freshmen to this great school. But on arriving at the very doors, we found we could not be that way long, for, Miss Cabell, the teachers, and the whole student body in general made us feel at home and indeed very comfortable. All the girls appreciated the way in which their Senior Friends treated them and saw to their various needs.

Then came the parties given by Miss Cabell to the different sections of the class, in order that we might make acquaintances with our classmates. We had the most delightful times at these parties and after they were all over we really felt as though we knew one another.

After we had become fairly well settled, we began to organize the class.

The first thing we did was to appoint a committee to draw up a constitution. Several weeks passed before it was voted on, but then it was accepted without a bit of trouble. Having this out of the way we were then able to really start and do something.

A little later, we began the great task of electing officers. Several petitions were out for each office and all was one general hub-bub until they were filled with the necessary names. The most exciting moment of all was, just before the time came to a close, when the petitions were all to be in. After the election had been held, the results were:

President .....	Anne Gottschalk
Vice-President
Tie between Cecille Quinn and Wilhelmina Johnson
Secretary .....	Beatrice Patterson
Treasurer .....	Aletta Mathison
Representative .....	Lily Hanes

As we had finished with the election quite late in the semester, we were not able to accomplish as much as we had expected to when we first started.

We have always enjoyed the entertainments given in assembly and we soon found out that we were to have our chance at giving a program. At last the notice came; it was to be a Memorial Day Program. At this notice we began to work, appointed a committee and got up a program which proved to be quite a success.

This, in a way, ended all of our responsibilities for the semester except that which ends everything, the final examinations.

Review of the Faculty

In the college that we love so well
We've spent our final year;
For two years we've obeyed the bell
And June at last is here.

In our first term, remember we
Mr. Hill, our good mild friend.
Mr. Ashley in our dreams we'll see
And the little notes he'd send.

We're no dead-beats—but just the same
So says the famous rhyme,
We'll beat you at most any game,
And we've learned to beat the time.
(Ask Miss Garthe.)

In 109 was Mr. Smith
As a "Prof" he's surely fine
We learned of bark and wood and pith
In maple, oak and pine.

Miss Cabell too, in 305
Taught English prose and rhyme
In her class we were all alive
And always there on time.

Let's think about semester 2,
Of Mr. Hinkle's class;
We studied math well, thru and thru
That all we might surpass.

Oh, Mr. Branom, it was you
Who roused our sleeping brain,
And brought us back from skies of blue,
Down to this "earth" again.

The best that Normal ever knew
Mr. McMurray, our friend!
If he could be of aid to you
A willing hand he'd lend.

And then a class—our heart's desire,
It drove away dull care,
For we were there with Dr. Geyer
O! would we now were there.

When we came back from practice days,
The Health Course waited for us.
To keep a diary surely pays
This task did never bore us.
(Cause we wrote it all in one night.)

We now recall one dear to all
In days long since gone past
One with whom we will recall
The hours went by so fast.

She's just as nice as nice can be
To whom do I refer?
Why need you ask this last of me?
It's our Miss Gallagher.

All these may leave us and maybe
We ne'er may see them more,
But living in our memory
We'll see them as before.

How To Entertain Visitors

1.

When visitors to Normal come,
On tours of observation,
Anxious to see our famous school
And seeking information,
Do not fail to welcome them;
Ask them their names and stations,
And if you think it can be done,
Find out their occupations.

2.

Then, having introduced yourself, say,
"This way, please follow me,
I'll show you all the famous things
Of Normal's history."
Show them first the darling frogs,
Of which Miss Blount's so proud.
Show them the pretty pussy-cats
Round which the students crowd.

3.

Remember there's no time to waste
Tell them they must be quick
For on the second floor they'll see
Mr. Branon's famous stick.
Ask if they care for Psychology,
And if they say they do,
Tell them they'd better forget it,
If they wish to remain with you.

4.

When you're sure that they understand
How you feel toward Psychology,
Close their lips with adhesive tape,
And enter the library.
Advance on tip-toe thru the room,
And if you see Miss Bates
Put on another strip of tape
For noise she simply hates.

5.

When you have left the library,
Descend the marble stairs
Until you reach the lunch-room,
With its beautiful tables and chairs,
No doubt your guests will linger
Admiring our banquet-hall,
If they seem to hesitate too long
Point to the clock on the wall.

6.

Of course they will take this gentle hint,
And meekly follow you
Away from the kingdom of soup and croquettes
And vegetable stew.
By this time, if you're feeling tired
And the visitors are not,
The only thing for you to do
Is lose them on the spot.

7.

So quickly run ahead of them
Leaving them in the rear,
And if they start to call you
Pretend you do not hear.
Having gracefully departed
Without lingering good-byes
Seek out a quiet corner
And shout your tired eyes.

* * * * *

And henceforth when you meet them
On tours of observation
You can greet them or avoid them
As suits your inclination.
Of Normal's history."

The famous old trio of Parker, Carter, and Haines, Practice Schools, is no more. Our practice schools are no longer three in number. There are fifty of them and we call them Co-operative Schools.

This has been the state of affairs since September, 1920, when the new system of practice was begun. According to this plan a student practices all day for ten weeks instead of a half a day for twenty weeks as formerly. She thus gets a very intimate knowledge not only of the management and organization of the school, but also of many different methods of teaching. Her time is divided between teaching and observing and she feels herself a real part of the school. Under the old plan a practice student was more or less of an outsider. There was always something slightly artificial and unnatural in her relations with the children she taught. Now, this is largely done away with, for the student is really on the inside of things and is consequently more interested in her work. Practice teaching under these conditions is very much like the real thing.

The greatest drawback to this new system is that the girls in practice are cut off from the life of the College for ten weeks. This condition is to be regretted, yet, that it works good is evidenced in the increased pleasure and interest the students take in school activities when they do come back from practice.

The plan was instituted as somewhat of an experiment. So far it has proved successful and no doubt it will continue to do so. Those who have practiced under it have been well satisfied with the training and experience acquired. They saw school teaching as it really is with the good and the bad truthfully presented, so that when they start teaching in earnest, they will go in with eyes open, knowing where the difficulties lie and how to overcome them.

At all times they met with the kindest criticism, encouragement, and aid from the principals and teachers of the Co-operative Schools.

To A Looking Glass

Looking glass, it seems to me
That you encourage vanity;
And though you say you're innocent,
I half believe that if you went,
We'd find ourselves becoming quite
Simple, sweet and erudite.

A Priceless Treasure

---

She who tears my hair-net,
Or jerks it from my head,
Will not live the day out—
By sunset she'll be dead.
For my hair-net is my treasure
The beloved of my heart.
Also—a new one costs fifteen cents
With which I hate to part.

The Best Bus

---

O, Normal Park Express you are
Far better than any motor car.
And if I had my own free choice
Between you and a swift Rolls-Royce,
I'd choose you—Elevated Train.
A Packard's quite a good machine
A Loco's as nice as any I've seen;
But I don't want one; I've a car,
That runs without a jolt or jar,
It's you—Elevated Train.

Household Arts

The Household Arts Department is one of the special departments of the College and has a splendidly equipped suite of rooms in the Arts Building. Here, under the direction of Miss Swain, the girls learn to bake cakes that never fail to rise, biscuits that are always light and fluffy, and to serve appetizing, nourishing, and economical meals. With Miss Milner the principles of constructing serviceable, well-made and becoming garments are practiced.

The College lunchroom, which daily feeds fifteen hundred grade, high school, and College students, is under the supervision of this department with Miss Page at the head. Here the girls learn to work with large quantities of food under the direction of Miss Evoy, who has charge also of the first semester class in food work.

Do the students really learn to cook and sew well? They do, judging from the demands for their help in planning spreads and the favorable comments on their products. A good proof of the quality of the sewing work is that the girls actually wear their dresses. In our practice work we gain an idea of what our work after graduation will be and how to handle it.

Last fall all the girls in the department co-operated in making jams, pickles, preserves and jellies, some of which they sold immediately, the rest being held over and put on sale in one of the College rooms at Christmas time along with articles made in the art and sewing classes and cookies, candies, and plum pudding made in the food laboratory. A considerable profit was realized and the money was used to help the Armenian and Chinese relief work and the Vocational Guidance Bureau of the city, and the remainder went towards a fund raised by the Household Arts teachers of the country for the purpose of establishing a Home Economics department in Constantinople College. The fund pays the teacher's salary for one year and buys the equipment. After the first year the work will be supported by the Constantinople College itself.

Although in a special department, the students of the Household Arts are not in a section by themselves, but are grouped with sections of the Elementary students and meet with them in discussing school activities, in sports, and in some classes, for not all their time is given to special subjects. As the Household Arts students are rarely to teach other subjects than the special, much of the method taught in the classes for the elementary students is of little value to them, so special gymnasium, history, and English classes were arranged for them, both this year and last year by Miss Swain, and a short course in food psychology supplemented the regular work in that subject.

This year's enrollment of forty-two is slightly below the average. Though the department is small, it is useful to the school. The girls are active in all sports and other activities of the students, many of the girls holding class offices in various organizations.

The Kindergarten Department

If a kindergarten girl were asked why she took up kindergarten work she might say many things. First and foremost, she would say because of her love of little children and the joy she derives from working with them, and next, because of the opportunity it offers for the serious observation and understanding of children and their early activities. We think the Kindergarten Department is just the place to belong.

Four classes make up the department—forty-four girls in all, and with our two instructors, Miss Russel and Miss Manchec, we form a very happy group. Fifteen girls graduate in June and eight in February. These figures at a first glance appear small but when we think of the small number entering Normal, we feel we have a fair share to represent our kindergarten.

We might say a word or two about what the kindergarten aims to accomplish. We first look to the health of our children, trying to have a healthy, happy group in kindergarten. We then start them along the road of knowledge. We do this by our own special method which is thru play, thereby creating a desire to learn. Often children will say, "When are we going to work? I want to make something." Our motto is "Do something," or, as modern educators say, "We learn to do by doing."

All branches of elementary study are taken up in our work, but much emphasis is laid on freedom in work, healthful activity, and out of door nature work. A teacher not only brings in a pussywillow, a leaf, a flower, but takes her children outside to see the things actually growing.

When we read of the advancement of new and wonderful ideas in modern education, we realize and are glad to know that we are working along these lines, making work and life more interesting for little children.

The Senior Dramatic Club had its origin in the Oral Expression Classes. Plays were given from 1900 to 1905 by groups in these classes. No records of the plays have been preserved except in one case in 1900 when "The Princess" was given.

The formal organization of the Club took place in October of 1905 and from that year until 1911 the meetings were held in the Dome, when, owing to the fire ordinance, the meeting place was changed to room 200. During the first few years of the Club's existence a varying number of plays were given each year. Afterward it was decided to present only two plays each year, known as Mid-year play in January and the Spring play in May, to which the public was invited, and if called upon, a play for an assembly of the school was given.

The proceeds of these plays have been contributed to relief funds, some of which in the past years have been—San Francisco Earthquake Relief, Armenian Aid for Children, and Red Cross.

During the past year two plays have been given, "Miss Hobbs" and "Merely Mary Ann," with greatest success. As usual, both plays were under the capable direction of Miss Freeman.

We must not close without extending our thanks to Mr. Hinkle, Mr. Thoren, and Mr. Geilen for their hearty co-operation.

CAST OF "MERELY MARY ANN"

"Merely Mary Ann"

The Spring Play, "Merely Mary Ann," by Israel Zangwill, was presented on the afternoon and evening of May 20, 1921. It was a huge success both from a financial and dramatic standpoint. Miss Anna McCarthy who had the title role gave an excellent impersonation of a poor girl's sudden rise to social heights. She had all the poise and presence of a real actress and contributed to the success of the play. She was ably supported by Lancelot, the hero, played by Miss Hazel Schmidt.

Others in the cast were:

Herr Brahmson.....	Catherine Woulfe
Peter .....	Dorothy Doggett
O'Gorman .....	Edna Upton
Rev. Samuel Smedge.....	Helen Clifford
Lord Tottingham.....	Helen O'Keefe
Mrs. Leadbeater.....	Helen Meyering
Rosie .....	Ruth Liston
Lady Chalmer.....	Ruth Lichter
Trippitt Sisters.....	Elizabeth Camutz
	Anna Makowsky
Caroline, Countess.....	Marie Sabath
Lady Gladys.....	Loretta Gill
Lady Glynn.....	Helen Gaskin
Howard .....	Cecelia Jankowski

The Heffernan Orchestra between acts played a number of popular musical numbers which were greatly enjoyed by the audience. The club is deeply grateful for their services.

This being the fiftieth play it was celebrated by inviting the Alumnae of the S. D. C. back to the play and a dinner served in the lunchroom. The Alumnae was largely represented and an enjoyable time was had by all. We hope to continue this plan and so every year enable the S. D. C. members to reunite.

“Miss Hobbs”

“Miss Hobbs,” a comedy drama by Jerome K. Jerome, was given in December of 1920 and met with marked success. The three “Helens” — Miss Helen Gallagher as “Miss Hobbs,” Miss Helen Miller as “Mrs. Kings-earl,” and Miss Helen Gaskin as “Millicent Farey,” portrayed their parts equally well, while Miss Marie Tierney as the hero, “Wolff Kings-earl,” played her part cleverly and surpassed our fondest expectations.

Others supporting the cast were:

Charles .....	Ruth Glos
George Jessop.....	Cecelia Jankowski
Percival Kingsearl.....	Hazel Schmidt
Captain Sands.....	Kathryn Henriksen
Maid Servant.....	Ella Cronin
Miss Susan Abbey.....	Constance Hunter

Our New Curtain

From time immemorial amateur players have had trouble with their curtain. Either it fell to the floor in a heap or it became obstinate and refused to operate. It wrinkled when it should have hung straight and did other things which are not expected of a well-behaved curtain.

Players on our stage have had their share of curtain troubles, but they will meet with them no more, for there is now a fine new curtain on the stage in the Auditorium. It was given to us by the Board of Education and adds greatly to the appearance of our Auditorium. It is not only a very beautiful curtain but it also operates perfectly. No fear of this curtain not doing the right thing at the right time.

The University Girl at Normal

The girl who comes to Normal from one of the larger universities finds it difficult to adjust herself at first to conditions so different from those to which she has been accustomed. She is conscious of the much more limited sphere of social activity; she misses the delightful strolls across the campus, and the careless sauntering to classes.

She soon comes to realize, however, that Normal is not so greatly different from any of the smaller colleges for girls, except that it is highly specialized. The larger the university from which she has been graduated, the more does she appreciate the intimacy of Normal life. She can enjoy all the more the personal contact with the instructors; and the friendly spirit of the girls gives her a satisfaction she has not known at a university where she is only a drop in the ocean.

It is to be expected that work at Normal should come easier to the university girl than to the girl who is fresh from high school. The college girl may, for this reason, get greater enjoyment from it. The university girl has not been long at Normal before she realizes that there is an air about the place which she will go far to discover elsewhere. It is the really remarkable Normal spirit which the university girl, with her wider experience, is not slow to recognize and appreciate.

NELLIE LOUISE BAUMAN

One of Us

Most lives hold but a relative significance without their own communities and experiences and though they embrace hundreds in one or another contact, yet they remain distinctly personal in all. Occasionally a life towers above its own scope with a reality peculiarly impersonal. With death the understanding of such a life becomes, not the private memory of a privileged close few, but the right of every individual with capacity to recognize the pain and splendor of creative aspiration.

Nellie Louise Bauman was born in Farmington, Missouri, July 14, 1895. She entered the Tully High School of Chicago in 1909 and was graduated from the Chicago Normal College, June 24, 1915. The two ensuing years found her a student at the University of Chicago and an Instructor of Playground activities under the South Park Commission. In 1917 she accepted an Executive Secretaryship in the National League of Women Workers in New York City. With the termination of her two strikingly successful years in this then pioneer field of Girls' Work, she became, under the stage name of Mary Emerson, a member of the Harry Robbins Players, an English company in Toronto, Canada. Again success of an unusual nature marked her endeavor. On January 21, 1921, Miss Emerson accepted a temporary appointment with an American company. In the third week of the tour she contracted pneumonia and died February 11, 1921, in Utica, New York. The interment took place February 14, in New York City.

Her classmates will remember that she brought to the Normal College three dominant factors: a mind that worked with the quick accuracy of a rapier; an intelligent optimism that, in the later development of young womanhood, made possible the struggle to fulfill a dream despite any number of obstacles. And to most of her classmates that dream is the third and clearest memory of Nellie Bauman. From the ardent enthusiasms of high school dramatics, they watched the growth of her tireless energies in the Senior Dramatic Club, and they knew that, out of the several who caught like dreams of youth, the radiant "Celia" of "Green Stockings" would perhaps reach her goal. She did! And, therein lies the quality that gives her success and the present memory of her a vital meaning.

Nell Bauman did well any task she undertook, and more than one brilliant plateau offered her a keen career. In play ground and recreational platform activity she might have gone far. In the incredible achievement in New York organization work she had a firm grasp on a definite realization of herself. And yet she turned from the secure comfort of her executive future to make real her belief in the American stage. Achingly aware of its futilities, feeling deeply the opposition of circumstances, she cast herself as nothing, and went further in two years toward the fulfillment of an exacting dream than most of us, given the dream, could in several lifetimes. She had what her Eastern League collaborators, paying tribute at her funeral services, called "A gallant courage against stupendous odds."

Not even the cruel accident of young death can dim for those who are remembering her, the vibrant quality of her laughter, the challenging lift of her chin, the infinite capacity for sympathy and suffering that lay behind the keen appraisement of her eyes. Nor can they forget that, out of the alternate fun and weariness of the climb, she had thrilled, glorious and glad, with those first moments of ecstasy when the shadowy mass beyond the footlights were calling her before the curtain.

In all the victories of mankind there come no greater moments than those first tangible realities of a dream coming true. But fourteen days before her illness the camera caught that steady glance into the future—the eyes wide with the gay confidence and wistful seriousness of those safe, deep glimpses of a career of creative art.

Such splendor does not die. Nell Bauman lives in the endeavor of many whose courage to live keenly and sincerely was reborn with the passing of her life through theirs. No human being could approach her, however casually, without warming to the strength of her trust in the best in all of us and her shattering scorn for anything less. Square to the hilt, she indeed "felt ugliness like a pain, resented the wrongs of others as bitterly as her own, saw at a glance the glory of the world, and heard, at moments, the clear voice of God."

Students' Council

The Students' Council is the most important student organization of the Chicago Normal College. It represents the student body as a whole and endeavors to carry out their plans, with the help of the faculty. The Council meetings are held on the first Monday of every month. On the Thursday after each meeting the different section representatives report to their own sections the business of the meeting. Even though the meetings have been held after school the representatives have come, thus showing their loyalty and their desire to co-operate with the faculty.

The work of the Students' Council varies, according to the needs and demands of the students. This semester a motion was passed and submitted to Mr. Owen, whereby the period following swimming be left free so that the girls might have time to dress and dry their hair. Also, a collection was taken up by the representatives of the Council for the suffering children of Armenia.

The social hour held every Friday is maintained by the S. C. The splendid music and good times we have there are all the result of the untiring efforts of the Social Chairman.

Arrangements have already been made for the welcoming of the new classes in September. Friends have been chosen for the new students, parties have been planned in their honor and we feel that after the new students meet the girls of the Students' Council they will say with us, "Truly, the Students' Council is Normal's greatest organization."

The Senior Glee Club

Wednesday has an hour of especial delight in that part of the College where Mr. Fairbank keeps us humming. It is the time when the prima donnas of every class forget temperament long enough to revel in soul stirring harmony.

Ordinarily this wealth of song issues from behind closed doors, but to the joy of everyone we appeared in assembly May 16, and gave our Spring Musicales. To our interesting numbers were added a number by the violinist, Mr. Carl Zeitler, with Miss Elsa Zeitler at the piano; solos by Miss Kathleen Ryan with Miss Florence O'Brien at the piano; and duets by Miss Ethlyn Seaton and Mr. Wm. Oakes with Miss Elva Layton at the piano. Its overwhelming success was a gratifying reward to those who made it possible.

Our graduation exercises are enriched by these concerts of the Glee Club which go to make the life of the student of the Normal College a pleasure and a sweet memory in the days to come.

Those in the Senior Glee Club this year are:

---------------------	----------------

The Normal College Athletic Association is the largest and most popular club in the College. N. C. A. A. is simply a way of saying hiking, basket-ball, captain ball, tennis, dancing, indoor baseball, and hockey clubs. Each of these clubs has its own officers who direct its special activities and all are united under the association officers. Every student is eligible to the club and our membership list is sufficient evidence to show the important place it holds in the life of the school.

You who have watched the girls in the clubs know that they enjoy every minute. They learn through the sports to be triumphant winners or good losers; the latter being an important part of any person's training.

The N. C. A. A. awards trophies according to the point system; a certain number of points is given for each sport, a numeral representing 250 points, an emblem of "N" for 500 points, and a gold pin for 1,200 points.

Join the N. C. A. A. and help keep the true College spirit alive.

Basketball

Coaches—Edna Cooper, Helen Fortune.

President—Ruth Green.

Secretary—Mary Madeline Murray.

An echo of cheers came up from the gym. The big game of the season was on! The Juniors were fighting the Seniors for that much coveted prize—the championship. Cheers could be heard, now from one side, now from the other. A final shout denoted the end of the game. Of course the Seniors won, but the Juniors comforted themselves with the thought that next year they would claim the championship, for who does not profit by a year of experience? Great enthusiasm was shown this year among the basketball people. According to the custom, an All-Star team was selected by the coaches. The lucky ones were Ruth Baker, Margaret Murray, Marion Stenhouse, Catherine Reilly, Marcella Kock, Eunice Michels, Frances Parkhurst, and Margaret Cahill.

Hiking Club

President—Mary Pubins.

Secretary—Marie Lennon.

Have you ever noticed a large crowd of girls in the front corridor on Tuesdays about 2:15? It was the Hiking club ready to go on its weekly hike. Why is it the most popular club in the whole school? I shall tell you. You know this club requires no special ability, anybody can walk, and do so without practice. We have gained a knowledge of the surrounding country, its ice cream parlors and its bakeries. We have also discovered almost every street car line on the south side. The work of planning and arranging the hikes was done by the president. We wish to give her our thanks for the many and varied walks.

Captain Ball

Senior Coach—Ruth Baker. President—Margaret Murray.
Junior Coach—Marion Stenhouse. Secretary—Ruth Baker.

A new sport has entered the annals of the N. C. A. A. This is Captain Ball. Some of us who happened to wander into the gym one Monday after school were mystified by the queer markings on the floor. Enchanted we stepped inside one of the rings and immediately a basketball was thrown at us. We were expected either to sink the ball in the basket or to throw it to the captain. We finally became so efficient in doing one or the other of these things that we made the All-Star team, after the Juniors had won the championship from the Seniors. Is it possible that never having played the game before, one could make the All-Star team? It is not only possible but it has been done. Also the All-Star team, composed almost wholly of girls who did not know anything about the game before, showed its skill by defeating the Parker All-Star team.

Normal can be proud of her students if they will always show the same good sportsmanship they did when playing captain ball.

Those who were on the All-Star team were A. Erickson, E. Morris, M. Jennings, T. Hanes, E. Nix, G. Kerf, M. Kock, M. Murray, J. Casey, E. Michels, M. Kennedy, A. Coyle, and C. Quinn. The Captain Ball girls all wish to extend their thanks to their coaches.

Hockey Club

Coaches—Edna Cooper, Helen Fortune, Miss Goodhue.
President—Ella Cronin.
Secretary—Margaret Hayes.

Hockey!!! A world of pep, speed, and lightning is implied in that magical word. Yet it is not exaggerating in the least to say that each member of the Hockey Club possesses these qualities individually.

Last September a large number of girls met at Hamilton Park field to become world famous hockey players. Miss Cooper and Miss Fortune were again the enthusiastic and able coaches for the advanced team and Miss Goodhue from the C. N. S. of P. E. coached the beginners. But alas! We had experienced just enough of the spirited game to make us desirous of playing it to the limit, when the weather stepped in and spoiled our plans. Only three days on the field did not permit our playing the Junior-Senior game or choosing the All-Star team.

Now girls, be patient, and next semester every girl at Normal will have a chance to play the game and strive towards the ever coveted goal—the All-Star team.

Indoor Baseball

Coaches—Catherine Reilly, Alice Foy, Helen Reeves.
President—Elvira Seips.
Secretary—Ruth Baker.

"Baseball!" That magic word! Mention it and the world in general is interested. Every Friday we suffered from aching muscles and broken backs. We carried evidence of our outdoor sport by our many freckles and bright and shiny noses and cheeks. Of course, everyone turned out and we had loads of fun. Regular practice began after the spring vacation. The final games will be played later, consequently the results of the games and the members of the All-Star team of 1921 cannot be given here.

Tennis Club

Coach—Helen Fortune.
President—Helen Walsh.
Margaret Hayes.

Over the net and back again
The ball goes whizzing by,
All afternoon we played this game
Till the sun had gone from the sky
With careful eye and steady aim,
We cast it back and forth.
Why shouldn't we love to play it so,
When "love" helps score the game?

With the spring comes the good old game of tennis, the game that transforms one's graceful movements into quick and decisive actions. This club attracts those who claim it absolutely impossible to hit a ball with a bat, but with a racket—well, that seems plausible, and so these join our club, learn how to play, try to play, really play, and finally win. Some become such marvels that at the end of the term they become title holders.

During the semester we have had so many new applicants that the court space would not accommodate all. The time for each set had to be limited to prevent conflicts. If the present membership of able players continues, perhaps some day we shall see a C. N. C. Tennis Club members' picture in the rotogravure section of the Sunday Tribune as the silver cup winner of America.

Dancing Club

Coach—Miss Wentworth.
President—Mary McCabe.
Secretary—Laura Lewis.

This year the dancing was under the direction of Miss Wentworth, who is a wonderful dancer as everyone knows. At the beginning of each lesson we practiced technical combinations to make our hands and feet work in perfect co-ordination. We were rather awkward at first but everything worth while takes time to be accomplished so we did not give up hope. At the end of the time those who had attained the greatest knowledge of the art and who had achieved the highest degree of perfection were honored by the judges by being given extra points. The dancing club owes its success to the untiring efforts of our coach. We appreciate her help and are grateful for her good will, which made the club a real joy.

Class Day

Clay Day, June 23, dawned bright and clear. The Class of 1921 hurried into their gingham and sport clothes in delightful anticipation of the wonderful day before them. For wasn't it to be the "New Class Day"? They thought of the description of the class days of their aunts and sisters, the class day with nothing but hustle, bustle, and worry for the class itself, and the often unsatisfactory feeling that followed. This was to be a day of unalloyed pleasure for both Class and Faculty.

Ten o'clock found the class and many of the lower classmen assembled on the campus for the formal, symbolic part of the class day exercises in which the class shows its devotion to its Alma Mater and what her ideals and standards have meant to it.

At the successful conclusion of this part of the program, the "newness" began. The Class and Faculty assembled in the lunchroom for a banquet. This was delightful, from the adorable graduating girls used as place cards to the interesting and witty toasts given by students and members of the Faculty. We aren't saying anything about what we had to eat. The seraphic countenances were evidence enough. The cheers and class song which followed were so full of pep and enthusiasm that nobody could question Normal College school spirit.

Then came the boat ride, the excursion! At two o'clock the big excursion boat left Jackson Park. It certainly was a pretty sight. Everyone was wearing a bright-colored crepe paper cap and apron, the former decorated with stars and crescents, and the latter with boutenniers. Besides that, each hand held a big, beautiful balloon to further carry out the variegated effect. After an afternoon of singing, dancing, and refreshments, while making a trip along the north shore, we landed at the Municipal Pier at 7:30, to pronounce the day one which will always live in our memories as a "Real CLASS Day."

Money is Like a Stream of Water

Q Did you ever stop to think of a stream of water — how it flows through your city or past your home — day after day and year after year. But the moment a dam is built and the water stopped — or even part of it — the stream becomes a constantly widening and deepening reservoir of power, with all its significant possibilities of usefulness.

Q Saving money is like building a dam across a stream. You can let your money come and go, as water in a stream, or by forethought you can stop some of the outgo and pile up for yourself week by week or month by month, the savings which in later years will add to your independence, to your ability to take advantage of new opportunities, and to the comfort you can get out of life.

Q There never was a time when it was so worth your while to save as now. The dollars put away today will buy just that much more when prices come down. Come in and let us work out some plan to take advantage of today's unusual opportunity for saving.
